That object has been ac- circumstances. complished; we have given to books wings, and they have flown to the uttermost parts of our vast continent carrying society to the secluded, occupation to the lite-rary, information to all. We now propose still further to reduce prices, and render the access to a literary ban-quet more than two fold accessible; we gave and shall ontinue to give in the quarto library a volume weekly for two cents a day; we new propose to give a volume in the same period for less than four cents a reck, and to add as a piquant seasoning to the dish a few columns of shorter literary matter, and a summary of the news and events of the day. We know by experience and calculation that we can go still further in the matter of reduction, and we feel that there is still verge enough for us to aim at offering to an increasing literary appetite that mental food which it craves.

The Select Circulating Library, now as ever so great a favorite, will continue to make its weekly visits, and a hydrife, will continue to make its weakly visits, and to be issued in a form for binding and preservation, and its price and form will remain the same. But we shall in the first week-of January 1837, issue a huge sheet of the size of the largest newspapers of America, but on very superior paper, also filled with books of the newest and most entertaining, though in their several departments of Novels, Tales, Voyages, Travels, 4c., select in their several with this opinion and assurance he has been induced to component to entertaining the will endown to employe the research and with reading such as usually should ments of Novels, Tales, Voyages, Travels, &c., select in their character, joined with reading such as usually should fill a weekly newspaper. By this method we hope to accomplish a great good: to enliven and enlighten the family circle, and to give it, at an expense which shall be no consideration to any, a mass of reading that in book form would alarm the pockets of the prudent, and to do it in a manner that the most sceptical shall acknowledge the power of concentration can no farther go." Embracing a carefully selected series of the newest Publications on a variety of subjects.

Interesting to all who desire to make themselves acquainted the first day of July, commence in the same faultless style, and collision of the celebrated BULWER NOVELS, comprising— Pelham, Devereux, Disowned, Eugene Aram, Rienzi, Paul Clifford, Last Days of Pompeii, Falkland, Pilgrims of the Rhine,

Popular Novelists."

In preparing the following work from ample materials, care has been exercised to avoid, in the main, the beaten track of former compilers; to present the reader rather what was inactormer compuers; to present the reader rather what was mac-cessible, than to copy well known biographics and events.

The principal object of the present collection, is to supply a pleasing variety of that kind of incident, which, by exhibiting the marvellous in circumstance, and the extraordinary in char-acter, displays the occasional waywardness of event, and its fre-ment engines operation mean the human mind. It would be enacter, displays the occasional waywardness of event, and its frequent curious operation upon the human mind. It would be easy to prove that, independently of mere entertainment, a knowledge of remarkable facts is necessary to correct the judgment, even upon every-day transactions; and that in the science of life, as well as every other, it is necessary to become acquainted with the exception to the general rule. To estimate properly what is, we must possess some knowledge of what may be; and the information is only to be acquired by an attention to the memorable and peculiar, which have been.

ELECTION RETURNS.

We give to our readers the few returns that we have the remissuess of our friends in sending them in, we day it was only 1194. should suppose they felt little interest in learning the result. Of the few received not one has been voluntarily forwarded to us though in our last week's paper we the rest of the state sustain their vote as fare of the country. requested that our friends would favor us with the results.

Our accounts from other parts of the State are meagre, with the exception of the counties of Cumberland and York. In Cumberland the vote was a large one, and the regularly nominated democratic candidate for mem. ber of Congress has been elected by a handsome majority. The majority for the democratic electorial ticket in the County will be considerable larger, as the scattering votes were added to the democratic ticket, and the county comprises many more towns than the Congressional District. In York County the democratic majority for the electorial licket will be, it is stated, not far from thirteen hundred. In this County our majority will be over a thousand. From Kennebee we have received but a lew returns, and these indicate that the whig majority will be greatly diminished, and nearly annihilated oven in their strong hold From the remaining Counties we have heard nothing. We cannot therefore form any opinion as to the probable election of Davre, Cilley, Marshall or Pillsbury. The first we think will be elected, the others are more doubtful.

Degund our own State we have heard but little, but expect further news before our paper is put to press, and shall communicate the same to our readers.

We give the returns of votes in this County so far as we have received them.

Many of our cotemporaries are indulging in specula tions respecting the causes and consequences of the present high prices of provisions of all kinds, and the scarcity of money. The ogricultural part of the community are less affected by this than the other laboring classes. as the increased price of the few things which they have to buy is more than counter balanced by the profits of what they have to sell. Whatever may be the cause or consequences of this state of things, it may not be without its uses. It will teach to most of us a lesson of economy which may be worth more than all we suffer by it. It will speak in a voice that must be heard. Necessity will compel us to enquire how many things we now deem countial to our happiness may be dispensed with, leaving us comfortable, and if contented, happy. We shall learn to save much of what we now carelessly wash and to use other things more prudently and profitably Above all it will compel us to be industrious and not to to use a common phrase, "to cut our own fodder." If the present prices continue, the attention of people will be more generally turned towards agriculture, and finding it profitable it will become fashionable as it has al ways been honorable. There is a disposition among the rising generation to find some shorter route to wealth than agricultural industry. Some may succeed in their attempts, but more fail, for there is no path of industry that leads so surely and safely to competency, if not to wealth, as agriculture. Times like these will have a tendency to correct erroneous impressions and prejudices on this subject. With the present high prices the farming interest will vindicate itself from the neglect with which it has been treated, and receive that attention which it deserves.

SUPPOLE BASE MANAGEMENT. One or two articles have appeared in the Eastern Republican on the subject of the control exercised by the allied Banks in Boston, at the head of which stands the Suffolk Bank, over the Hanks of this State. The only cause over which this Department has any immediate control, being the execution of the late deposite act, you will readily perceive that its several provisions having emanated from New York were completed, and no new transfers, receipts, or expenditures should take place, there would still remain in that State, and most of the amount in its commercial capital, about ten millions of dollars of public money, or quite five millions more than the whole probable proportion of that State, under the provisions of the deposite banks in that city, had, by the last returns, nearly a million of dollars each more public money than three-fourths of the amount of their respective chartered ceive that its several provisions having emanated from Congress, and not the Treasury, can legally be changed or modified by Congress alone. calls it a gleam of sanshine,—the aspect will and will be my care, faithfully to entorce, while soon be changed, when the Democratic Coun-they remain a part of the law of the land. Adhering to these principles, I do not hesitate, on your representation, to extend the time of payment for most of the transfers not yet due from the several banks in New York city though the transfers in your own neighborhood, and particularly those for the reduction of the deposites to their legal amount among these banks, cannot with propriety, be much longer delayed.

Some of the outstanding transfers have now 30, 60 and 90 days, or nearly that, to run before payable; and several of them, a-mounting in all to about one and a quarter millions of dollars, mounting in all to about one and a quarter millions of dollars, are not payable at a distance, but in your own city.

All those payable out of the city and State, over the amount of transfers payable from other States before the first of January, are less than one and a half millions of dollars.

Those transfers from your city, which fall due at home or witkin the State of New York before the 1st of January, will, therefore, as you desire, be postponed 20 days each, but cannot, with propriety be further extended. Those which fall due out of the State before the 1st of January, will at once all he postponed to State before the 1st of January, will at once all be postponed to the 1st of January, as the chief, though not sole object of them, is to have the money there seasonably for division among the

It is hoped that these indulgêncies will be employed, by the banks to enable them to complete easily the transfers afready ordered, and to execute efficiently the remaining transfers which will be necessary under the act to be directed hereafter, and of which, as heretofore, unless public exigencies should forbid,—whenever large in amount, a due and liberal notice beforehand whenever large in amount, a due and liberal notice beforehand of the times and places of payment, will be carefully given.

Concerning your last request of me to direct the banks making the transfers to put the amounts at the proper places, in the meantime, before they become payable, it may be necessary to explain, that the transfer order is now, in both form and substance, to that effect. When it is made payable at a distance, the funds must be remitted there by the time that it falls due;—

the funds must be remuted there by the time that it mus due;—but if at home, they must be got ready at home.

If, as is apprehended from your remarks, it is supposed by some that a transfer draft can, any more than a treasury warrant, be made payable on its face in any thing except specic,—provided the holder chooses to demand specie, the error should be convected as the idea is illegal and preposterous. 'He entered college at the age of twelve,which was then thought very early, and certainly is too early for the pursuits and temptaexpectations of this kind are not often shared by others, in his case, on account of his birth, they were thought appropriate and graceful.-When he became a member of the institution, Dr. Hoar, who was then president, gave him according to custom, 'this head for his initial declamation':

'Telemacho veniet, vivat modo, fortior wtas.'

We have little information concerning his rank in college: but, judging from its close, it must have been sufficiently high; for, when he took his first degree, President Oakes, in his Latin oration at the commencement, expressed himself in a strain, which may be thus trans-

"Mather is named Cotton Mather. What a name! But, my hearers, I confess I am wrong; I should have said, what names! I shall say nothing of his reverend father, since I dare not praise him to his face; but should he resemble and represent his venerable grandfathers, John Cotton and Richard Mather, in piety, learning, elegance of mind, solid judgment, prudence,and wisdom, he will bear away the palm; and I trust that in his youth, Cotton and Mather will be united and flourish again.'

Such an address, on such an occasion,would now make a considerable sensation.— sight.'
The effect of it was to fan the flame of Mather's ambition, and so to make him what all expected him to be. But it doubtless had another effect, which was to produce much of that jealousy in others, and that discontent in himself, which brought so much unhappiness on his latter years. Some poet of the day alluded to what he called his 'ominous name';

"Where two great names their sanctuary take,
And in a third combined a greater make."

Being blessed, as his son informs us, 'with a modest inquisitiveness,' a gift which is said not to be uncommon in New England, he made rapid advances before taking his second degree, which he received from the hand of his father. The Thesis which he then maintained, was 'the divine origin of the Hebrew points'; but he afterwards saw reason to change his mind, and held the contrary opinion at last.

'Such a man as Increase Mather would not regard learning and intellectual accomplishments as so important as religious education.-His first efforts, therefore, were directed to the formation of a Christian character in his son,who had sufficient fervor and readiness to receive impressions, and wanted the judicious counsel, which his father was well able to give. We are told, that almost as soon as he began to speak, he began to pray, and practised his duty constantly in all his earlier years. He often composed forms for his schoolmates, and recommended the duty to them. He frequently reproved them for profaneness and misconduct, firmness to bear up under the ridicule of those,
